NEW PLAY FOR MISS ANGLIN.

Based on "The Perch of the Devil."

Margaret Anglin will begin rehearsals next week for a new play by Rupert Hughes called "The Lioness, based on Geitrude Atherton's novel "The Perch of the Devil." She will be under the direction of George C. Tyler. The play will be presented in Atlantic City February 1 and will then go to Chicago for a run. No provisions are made for a New York presentation, as Miss Anglin has already appeared here in William Somerset Mausham's "Caroline" at the Empire Theatre earlier in the season.

Miss Anglin will have a role entirely dissimiliar from any of those in which she has hitherto been seen. She will play the part of a more or less primitive woods and Mrs. George B. Post.
